

Kiwi Doodle Information

A Kiwi Doodle is a perfect family pet with a goofy and loving personality. They have a non-shedding and odour-free fleece coat. These delightful dogs have been developed with love in the clean green shores of New Zealand. They are only available by one breeder who has developed them over many years of breeding who is a very experienced and knowledgeable Labradoodle breeder.

A Kiwi Doodle is the combination of a few different dog breeds. These are the multi generation Labradoodle and the Cavoodle ( Miniature poodle x Cavalier King Charles Spaniel).

These dogs come in a variety of colours from caramels, reds, chocolate, parti and solid colours with white patches.

Sizes range from:

- Miniature, 14" to 16" at the shoulder, weight of 8kg to 10kg and;
- Medium 16" to 18" at the shoulder, weight of 10kg to 18kg.

Kiwi Doodles have been developed by using very healthy Labradoodle stud dog's as an outcross to the gene pool for the Cavoodle. This is so any problems that may have been in the Cavalier King Charles Spaniel lines many generations ago (unseen) can be minimized by selective breeding process. Both parents are fully health tested by DNA for upto 26 breed specific diseases. This is to ensure the puppies produced will not be positive of any of these tested disease's. Doing this minimalizing problems in the offspring and means they will not go on to produce symptoms of these diseases.

Both parent's have ophthalmic eye exams annually to monitor eye health. The Labradoodle stud dog's are also hip and elbow x-ray screened to minimise any hereditary joint problems from occurring.

These puppies are extremely gorgeous, healthy and developed as family pets. They do not smell, shed there coats and are mostly allergy and asthma friendly. (If a known allergy/asthma is in the family a full labradoodle puppy may be advisable).
